Further, the program has not identified the data sets to which the information is relevant or sensitive. It is not certain, for example, whether the program will be able to identify the data sets that contain information about the health status of individuals, or whether it will be able to identify the data sets that contain information about the health status of groups of individuals.

This information is being generated in a fragmented way, and it is not being used in a coordinated way. This is a major problem, and it needs to be addressed.

LANDSLIDE AND FLOOD PRONE AREAS IN THE PHILIPPINES

The cycle of natural disasters the country has experienced has again highlighted the belief that the Philippines is possibly the most natural disaster-prone nation in the world. While this is a reality due to its location, the government has come up with appropriate measures to lessen or mitigate the negative impact of these disasters, such as floods, landslides, liquefaction, ground subsidence, and other ground instabilities.

The Geo-hazards Mapping and Assessment Program primarily involves the identification of areas in the country that are susceptible or prone to various types of natural hazards, and to using this vital data and information in local government units and government agencies concerned in disaster relief, mitigation, risk management, and post-disaster planning and management.

The data generation aspect is carried out through remote sensing studies, field surveys, and geo-hazards map preparation. The data and information generated by the program are used as inputs in the preparation of the Comprehensive Land Use Plan (CLUP) and Comprehensive Development Plan (CDP) of various LGUs to address the problems of disaster prevention and mitigation.

The Philippine map shows today identifies the top 10 provinces that are most prone to floods and landslides. The concerned LGUs and the public at large should endeavor to prepare of severe consequences.

The Daily Gospel

Read the Gospel for the day. The Gospel for the day is a short passage from the Bible, which is read during Mass. It is a good way to start the day with a reflection on the Word of God.

For more information on the issues discussed in this section, please refer to the "Opinion" section of the newspaper.

All biases covered

In the past, the Philippines has been known for its bias against certain groups of people. But now, with the help of the media, all biases are being covered.

CORRECTION The bias of the media is not only covered but also corrected.

Media bias is a common problem in many countries. It is often caused by the desire to attract attention and to sell more newspapers.

One way to correct media bias is to provide the media with accurate information.

Another way is to encourage the media to report on all sides of a story.

Finally, it is important to educate the public about media bias.

Only then can we hope to have a more balanced and accurate media.

It is the responsibility of all of us to ensure that the media is fair and unbiased.

Let us work together to create a more informed and responsible media.

Only then can we truly say that all biases are covered.

Let us strive for a media that is fair, balanced, and unbiased.

Billionaire ends leftists' 20-year hold on Chile

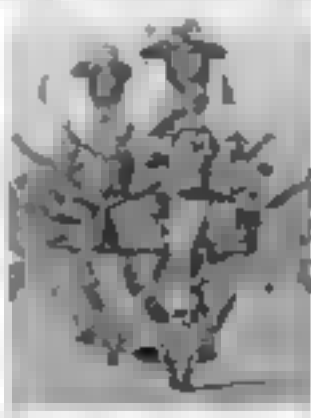

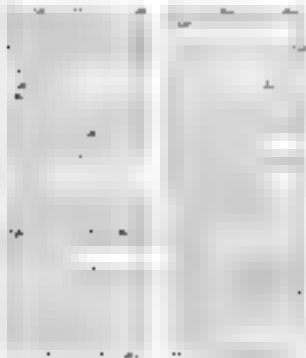

After 20 years of rule by the left, Chile's billionaire businessman, Sebastian Pinera, has won the presidential election, ending the long reign of the left. Pinera, 47, is the first right-wing candidate to win the presidency since 1980. He is a member of the Christian Democracy party, which is part of the right-wing coalition. Pinera's victory is seen as a turning point in Chile's history, as it marks the end of the left's 20-year hold on the country. The left had been in power since the 1990s, when it won the presidential election after a period of military rule. Pinera's victory is a surprise to many, as he was not considered a strong contender. He is a former mayor of Valparaiso and a member of the Chilean Congress. Pinera's victory is seen as a sign of a new era in Chile, as it marks the end of the left's long reign.
